

'Resource Policies: Effectiveness, Efficiency, and Equity'

2006 Berlin Conference on the Human Dimensions of Global Environmental Change

Berlin, 17-18 November 2006

Information for Supporters and Sponsors

Since the beginning of the conference series in 2001, the Berlin Conferences have always taken special care to stay manageable and reasonably priced in order to ensure participation of younger scholars and colleagues from developing countries.

An event being self-financed for the most part, the Berlin Conference has, however, only limited capacities to provide financial assistance for its participants. Every year a number of promising young scientists especially from developing countries are accepted at the conference but can nonetheless not participate due to financial restraints. In the past years, several private and public sponsors have helped to make participation possible for at least some of these colleagues.

The Berlin Conference Steering Committee would therefore be very grateful for your financial or logistic support.

If you want to support the 2006 Berlin Conference, you can, e.g.

- enable one or more applicants for the Berlin Conference to participate in the event by granting financial aid for his or her travel and accommodation expenses
- have your institution represented at the conference by
 - providing support for social events in the course of the conference like the annual diner on Saturday or a get-together
 - supporting the conference organisation by helping to provide all participants with a conference binder that includes all abstracts and necessary information about the conference

These suggestions notwithstanding we are of course also open to other possibilities of support.

Every supporter of the 2006 Berlin Conference will be highlighted in the conference programme, the website and other promotional activities.
